COOK'S
PEST CONTROL

COMPETENCE

ISSUE:

You need a pest management provider capable of handling not only common pest problems but also those beyond the expertise of most other companies.

SOLUTION:

Having partnered with thousands of businesses since 1928, Cook's Pest Control has the experience to address your pest problems. Technicians receive thorough training in the classroom and on the job. Quality control is managed by the Corporate Office. Corporate entomologists are available to provide direction and assistance.

COMMUNICATION & DOCUMENTATION

ISSUE:

Poor communication and documentation can result in sub-standard service, poor ratings in regulatory inspections, bad publicity, and possible litigation. In addition, you are unable to determine the value of your service.

SOLUTION:

Good communication from your pest control company to management is critical. We document services performed and materials used to provide information about current pest concerns, sanitation issues, and structural deficiencies. This gives you the ability to manage your program at your convenience and relay any concerns to us. In addition, proper documentation may be requested upon regulatory inspections.

IMAGE

ISSUE:

Unightly spider webbing, conspicuous insect traps, and unwanted pests and rodents can discourage repeat business and create an adverse work setting.

SOLUTION:

According to the Scope of Service found in the following pages, Cook's provides a customized pest program, resulting in a positive image that fosters a pleasant environment for all.

SECURITY

ISSUE:

Uncontrolled access may jeopardize the safety of your customers and employees. You need to be able to identify and trust the technicians who arrive to service your facility.

SOLUTION:

Cook's services are performed by screened and tested professionals, who are easily identified through marked vehicles, uniforms, and picture IDs.

BILLING

ISSUE:

Individual billing on multiple locations leads to frustration, confusion, and possible overpayment. It also increases payroll costs associated with organizing multiple invoices.

SOLUTION:

Cook's provides customized billing to meet a wide range of customer needs.

TRAINING

ISSUE:

An untrained pest control technician is a liability to your business. Your company wants the assurance that the service technician has received specialized technical training pertaining to your specific needs.

SOLUTION:

Cook's provides comprehensive and ongoing training. Our technicians focus solely on commercial pest control, to ensure service quality. They have completed specialized commercial training courses to uniquely qualify them for providing the service you need. In addition, Cook's technicians are licensed and/or certified in the area in which they serve.

WHAT COOK'S --- OFFERS

Cook's specializes in Integrated Pest Management (IPM), which is the science of using multiple control techniques to effectively manage pest problems. These techniques in the commercial setting include sanitation, mechanical control, and prescription treatment applications.

COOK'S

PRODUCTS & SERVICES

SANITATION

Cook's advises on sanitation practices to remove food and water sources required for pest survival.

- In some situations, sanitation alone may be an effective control strategy.
- In other instances, sanitation may have very little effect on reducing pest numbers.

Sanitation does, however, enhance other control strategies in a noticeable way.

MECHANICAL CONTROL

A significant part of an overall pest control program is preventing pest entry into structures and destroying pest harborage areas. Mechanical control methods may involve:

- Sealing pest entry points.
- Using insect monitoring traps or insect attracting light traps.
- Mechanical control procedures are used to supplement other control strategies.

PRESCRIPTION TREATMENT

Precision application yields the most effective pest control results. Cook's uses specially formulated products, which are designed to be applied for the most effective control of structural pests.

- Materials are applied directly into insect and pest harborage areas where pests spend the majority of their time.
- We inject small doses of concentrated products into structural cracks, crevices and other voids, taking advantage of the weak links in the pest's life cycle.
- The selection of products is based on the area of treatment and the target pest. This technique, part of an integrated system of pest management, results in superior service and results.

QUALITY ASSURANCE PROGRAM

- Cook's has a Quality Assurance system in place that we can customize to meet the needs of your business.
- This may include on-site visits by local management and in some instances Corporate Quality Assurance staff.

This monitoring program is another way to ensure that your pest problems are being handled effectively.

SCOPE OF SERVICE

Cook's Pest Control, Inc. will honor
Part C - Technical Specifications within Alachua County's
Bid # 22-25 with the following exclusions.

1. 20.3/20.3.6 Fire ant service further than 10 feet from the perimeter of the building is excluded.
2. 20.3/20.3.1 Brown recluse spider service is excluded.
3. 20.3/20.3.13 Snakes (Cook's does not provide wildlife removal)

RODENT CONTROL

Rodents carry diseases and also can damage the structure and its contents. Preventing rodent entry is the best means of control.

TREATMENT

- Rodent management programs will consist of maintaining traps in the interior areas and maintaining Tier 1 tamper-resistant bait stations on the outside, with emphasis on inspecting potential rodent entry points and/ or possible harborage areas.
- Rodents indoors can indicate exclusion issues. While Alachua County will be responsible for sealing any openings which could allow rodent entry, Cook's Pest Control is responsible for making Alachua County aware of any situations that could allow entry.
- Indoor – If rodents enter an inside area, technicians will discreetly place traps in the area. Technicians will monitor and maintain traps no less than monthly.
- Bait stations will be strategically placed by the back door and/ or the dumpster. Tier 1 tamper-resistant stations will be used and are designed to prevent non-target animals from accessing bait.
- Exterior – Technicians will empty, clean and replace bait and maintain Tier 1 tamper-resistant rodent bait stations every month.
- Comments and recommendations concerning exclusion, sanitation issues, and conditions conducive to pest infestations beyond the technician's control will be recorded on the service report. The conditions recorded will be communicated with the Assistant Manager or the Manager.

NOTE: Rodent snap traps and rodent glue boards are included with monthly service, however, multi-catch rodent traps are an additional cost as are exterior rodent bait stations.

ANT CONTROL

(excludes Fire ant)

TREATMENT

Customized treatments can include bait or treating specific mounds and treatment of facility landscape.

- Ants generally live outdoors and forage indoors.
- A specific treatment for ants will be made outdoors based on species.
- Trails indoors may be treated with baits or removed with alternative treatments.
- Ant trails may also be removed with cleaning wipes or portable vacuums for more immediate results.
- Technicians will attempt to find and eliminate the indoor food source that is attracting the ants.
- Improvements should be seen within five (5) to seven (7) days after treatment and after exclusion work has been performed.

NOTE: Fire ant service that extends further than 10 feet from the perimeter of the building is excluded. Fire ant control pricing can be provided upon request.

ROACH CONTROL

TREATMENT

- Large roaches that enter from outdoors will be controlled using baits indoors and outdoors.
- Large roaches that occasionally enter from outdoors will be controlled by an exterior liquid perimeter treatment.
- Small roaches that live indoors will be controlled using baits in areas where they live, which is generally around a source of warmth and/or water. These baits will be rotated on a consistent basis to prevent bait resistance.
- An insect growth regulator will be used to prevent roach reproduction.
- A minimum of 15 zone monitors will be discreetly placed to monitor results.
- Improvement should be seen within ten (10) to fourteen (14) days after treatment.

SPIDER CONTROL

(excludes Brown recluse)

TREATMENT

- Spider control will include the removal of spider webs around doors and windows. This service is provided on a monthly basis.
- Monitoring devices and additional trapping will be used in areas where permitted.
- Strategic placement of insect management material to wall voids, and/or crack and crevices, and application of insect management materials such as of liquid residual material will be used where label permits to maintain control.

NOTE: Brown recluse control pricing can be provided upon request.

FLEA CONTROL

TREATMENT:

- An inspection will be performed to determine if fleas are present and if a host animal exists such as squirrels, feral cats, raccoons, etc. If a host is present, a wildlife removal company will be subcontracted by Cook's Pest Control for an additional charge, subject to approval of such Subcontractor in accordance with the terms of the Agreement.
- Fleas are not always the culprit. Sometimes, static electricity or other environmental factors can cause employees to believe they are being bitten. Pesticide will not be applied unless it has been determined that fleas actually exist on site.
 - If no fleas are detected, the technician will consult with Cook's Management and the Administrator to resolve the situation.
- If fleas are present, all carpeting needs to be vacuumed before any treatment can be performed. Auburn's Administrator will be responsible for coordinating this activity.
 - Flea treatments must be performed after the area has closed for the day. If any area has been self-treating, the pest control technician will need access to those products to see if any conflicts exist.
- Treatments consists of a premixed aerosol, containing an adulticide and growth regulator used to stop reproduction. The product is applied to the flooring, covering the total interior of the area.
 - A non-residual pyrethrin aerosol may be used to speed up the elimination process. This may require smoke detectors to be deactivated for at least two hours.
 - A residual liquid spray, may also be applied outdoors if necessary.
- No one should enter the area until the floor is dry (cleaning crew and facility management etc.). This process should take approximately four (4) hours.
 - Any carpeting should be vacuumed again the following day.
- Results should be immediate and one treatment is all that is usually necessary. However, if a host animal was present before treatment, pupa (which cannot be eliminated) may hatch after treatment and cause bites. With no host animal, humans are the only thing left to feed upon.
 - Monitoring and additional trapping can be done with light traps and/or zone monitors.
